MANY OBSTACLES IN THE WAY OF THE RESOURCES

Ottawa, May 26.—Several contentions have arisen in connection with the transfer of the natural resources from the control of the Dominion to the province of Alberta. It is too harsh to say that there is a deadlock, because nothing like that has occurred, and the differences are such that they will likely be adjusted eventually. However, the contentions have arisen and will require careful negotiations. There seems to be not the slightest chance that there will be legislation in the present session of parliament.

Here are some of the difficulties:

1. Premier Greenfield thinks the Dominion government should keep control of the forest reserves on the eastern slope of the mountains. The federal government does not seem unwilling, but insists that in case the government does assume such responsibility, then the federal government should have the minerals in the National Park. Mr. Greenfield insists that the province have possession of the minerals in the National Park.

2. If Alberta is to get its natural resources, Premier Oliver of British Columbia contends that the title to that portion of the Peace River block in British Columbia should be transferred to his province.

3. Premier Dunning claims that in order to preserve the rivers in Saskatchewan which rise on the eastern slope of the Rockies, the federal government should maintain the forest reserves.

4. The Maritime provinces are likely to raise the question of more favored terms, which they are always ready and anxious to introduce.
5. There may be possibilities of discussion on such problems as the school lands and school funds, and it is not impossible that there might be some discussion about the age-old school question.

MARRIAGE LICENSE NEW REGULATIONS

"Child marriages" where the bride is from 15 to 16 years old, will become a thing of the past on and after July 1 next, when Alberta's new marriage act comes into effect, at which time the age limit will be raised to 16.

Consent of both parents will be necessary in the case of the girl bride of 16 and up to 18 years of age. The girl between 18 and 21 years requires the consent of one parent at least, except in the case of a girl living away from home and earning her own living, in which case consent is not necessary.

There appears to exist in the minds of most young women an opinion that at 18 a girl is legally of age and may marry without the consent of either parent. This is not the case, however, unless, as stated, she is living away from home and earning her own livelihood.

Other changes in the new marriage act provide that a marriage license not used within three months becomes invalid.

A clergyman performing marriage ceremonies under the new act will have a certificate of authority to perform marriages, issued from the bureau of vital statistics.

Where banns are called, one of the contracting parties must have resided for at least fifteen days in the municipality or parish within which the banns are called.

C.G.I.T. CONFERT

One of the big events of the season will take place in the form of a concert which will be given by the Edith Cavell and Golden Circle C.G.I.T.'s in the Methodist church, on Friday evening, June 5th, at 8:15 p.m.

The junior group have chosen for with an intellectual play and several other well chosen numbers.

The senior group have chosen for their program many popular items which assure pleasure. Kindly reserve this night for the concert, as this is the closing of the girls' term of C.G.I.T. work.

WEDDINGS

ANDERSON — PEARSON

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the manse of the Presbyterian church, at Olds, on Friday, May 28th, when Mrs. Rebecca Pearson, of Olds, was united in marriage to Robert Milford Anderson, also of Olds. The Rev. J. C. Heribson officiated.

Mr. Anderson has been engaged in railway bridge building for the past few years. The bride was teaching school at Berrydale, west of Olds. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson will reside on their farm in the Berrydale district. —Olds Gazette.

ARSON CASE AT PROVOST

On Friday last at Camrose before Judge Leas, Bertman Thomas Dekre pleaded guilty to setting fire to a four mill at Provost. In his statement the accused said that he did it at the instigation of Dr. York, in order that Dr. York should get the insurance on the building. Dr. York has been committed for trial on the same charge at Wetaskiwin in September.

Judge Leas sentenced Dekre to imprisonment for two years less one day. It is over a year since the fire took place and the provincial police are to be commended for sticking to their investigation of the circumstances until they got at the truth.

CROP OUTLOOK

WAS NEVER BETTER IN THE WEST

Lake Louise, May 26.—The crop outlook in Western Canada has never been better in the history of the country, according to Grant Hall, first vice president of the Canadian Pacific railway, and Chas. Murphy, general manager of western lines, who arrived here yesterday aboard their special train after a survey of the grain belt of southern Saskatchewan and Alberta. If nothing happens to mar the present general excellent conditions of grain in the ground, 1925 should be a landmark year for the farms of the west, they said.

ROYAL BANK ABSORBS UNION BANK CANADA

Ottawa, May 22.—Hon. James A. Robb, acting minister of finance, announced last night that he had given his consent to the purchase of the Union Bank of Canada by the Royal Bank of Canada. Before the agreement can be finally approved by the governor general in council, it requires ratification by the shareholders of both banks as provided by the Bank Act. Shareholders of the Union Bank can be finally approved by the governor general in council, it requires ratification by the shareholders of both banks as provided by the Bank Act.

Mr. Robb stated that, in asking his consent to the agreement of sale, the directors of the Union Bank had represented that, in view of substantially reduced earnings, with no prospect of early improvement, and the difficulty (despite most rigid economies) of curtailing proportionately the cost of operating, they were faced with the necessity of making a drastic cut in the annual dividend, which would result in a substantial drop in the value of the bank's shares and, further might adversely affect the general standing of the bank. To obviate the possibility of such a serious situation, and in order to protect the shareholders and the public, as well as in the interest of general financial stability, the directors of the Union Bank, after exhaustive consideration, deemed it their wisest course to obtain the consent of the acting minister of finance to a sale to the Royal Bank.

The purchase of the Union Bank of Canada by the Royal Bank of Canada reduces the number of banks chartered by the federal government to eleven.

The Ladies' Aid of the Scandinavian Baptist church will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wingblad, on Thursday afternoon, June 4.

ELECTIONS SOON IN SASKATCHEWAN

Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan and his Liberal government are facing the voters in a general election on June 2. The legislature has about lived out its term of office, but it is probable that the election was somewhat hastened with the view to decision before the prospective federal battle. Liberals numbered 45 in the house now dissolved, and the opposition, mostly of the Farmers party, 17 with one vacant seat. Dunning himself, has had a somewhat romantic career, coming from England as a farm laborer in 1902. He has combined the offices of premier and treasurer. It looks as if his strongest opposition in the present campaign will be from the Farmers. While the local issues will no doubt be the main subjects for battle, it is certain that the tariff and railway questions will be brought in.

FURTHER SUPPLY OF HOADLEY BOYS

A cablegram from the Overseas Settlement Board, just received by Hon. George Hoadley, expresses interest in and evident approval of the proposition submitted to it a short time ago in regard to further immigration and training of British farm boys. The suggestion was that 100 selected youths be sent over this year in the same way as before, but that they be distributed this time among the government's three farm schools at Vermilion, Olds and Claresholm, instead of being grouped by themselves at any one school.

If this plan is adopted, it is anticipated that the overseas board will contribute a sum toward the cost on the same net basis as last year, but to be applied directly. The advantage of the new method would be that the young Britishers would be mixed up with the Canadian boys and would gain by entering at once into the civilian life of the country. Definite arrangements to this effect will, it is expected, be made shortly.

Mrs. Cormack and family left Tuesday evening to join him. During their time in Wetaskiwin Mr. and Mrs. Cormack made a host of friends who regret their departure from the city, but at the same time, all join in wishing them every success for the future. Mr. Cormack is succeeded here by Mr. C. C. Knight, who comes from the Edmonton branch.

BOY SCOUT WORK EXPLAINED TO KIWANIS CLUB

Scouting is Educative, Gives Health and Develops Character

Kiwanian Rasmussen Gives Short Talk on Proposed Dairy Pool

The members of the Kiwanis Club enjoyed a very interesting address on the work of the Boy Scouts at the weekly luncheon Tuesday evening. The speaker was Kiwanian Donald Ross, who has been very active in this line of boys' work for a number of years. By the term scouting is meant the work and attributes of frontiersmen. A system of games and practices is supplied which meets the desires and instincts of the boys and is, at the same time, educative. Scouting puts them into fraternal gangs, and gives them a smart dress and equipment, which appeals to their imagination and romance and engages them in an active outdoor life. It gives physical health, and develops and teaches energy, resourcefulness and handicrafts. It puts into the lad discipline, pluck, civility and patriotism—in a word it develops character, and aims to make the rising generation good citizens.

The success of a nation does not depend so much upon its fighting powers as upon her character, and her commercial worth and integrity. If she can make herself indispensable on these lines to other nations she will be great and prosperous.

The scout movement was started in Wetaskiwin in 1912 by Dr. Norbury, now of Camrose, and rooms in the rear of the Methodist church were used. Rev. Mr. Harkness, assisted by Mr. Griffiths, started the Anglican scouts in 1915. For a short time, Mr. Merritt took charge of the Wetaskiwin Troop, and he was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Pritchard, about eight years ago. Mr. Ross took an interest in the movement and assisted Mr. Pritchard by taking up physical training and first aid to the injured. The second Wetaskiwin Troop, under the leadership of Mr. Griffith was organized when the Parish Hall was built, but this has been discontinued.

In 1920 a team was trained by Mr. Ross and sent to Edmonton to compete in the Junior First Aid Contest, which was held in the province, and won the shield and silver medals. The same year a team entered the Wallace-Nesbitt competition, which is under the auspices of the St. John's Ambulance association, and came within one point of being the trophy. The team in the Wetaskiwin team lost. The Journal Shield by only one point, and also the Wallace-Nesbitt trophy by the same margin.

In 1920, a local association was formed with E. N. Shaw, president; J. E. Fraser, vice president; and D. D. Watson, secretary. In 1921 the 1,000,000 canvassed for funds and raised $466.00. This sum was expended to purchase camp equipment and the boys spent a pleasant time at Pigeon Lake. Next year Wm. Y. Griffiths in charge, the boys attended the Edmonton district camp at Gull Lake. Last year Rev. James took a troop to Pigeon Lake and this year the boys are waiting another camp. The difficulty is to raise funds sufficient to take 30 or 40 boys to camp.

A hall or hut should be built here where the Wetaskiwin troops could have their headquarters, with gymnasium, etc.

Mr. E. R. Rasmussen, who was initiated as a Kiwanian Tuesday evening, addressed the club briefly on the three pools of the province, and asked all members of the club to do all possible to get signers during the drive which commences in a few days. He referred in particular to the dairy pool and pointed out that if the producers of the province can be lined up, the pool would mean a saving of over $1,000,000 to the farmers, or would enable them to pay $4,000,000 of indebtedness annually.

A patent game, which was erected at the rear of L. H. Newell's real estate office this week, is creating a great deal of interest. It can be opened and closed without leaving the seat of the vehicle.

THREE ACCIDENTS NEAR WETASKIWIN

Clarence Palmer, who resides about eight miles north of Wetaskiwin, met with a painful accident on Thursday last when a grub hoe fell on one of his feet, inflicting a very nasty gash. It required several stitches to close up the wound.

The friends of Arvid Lundblad regret to learn that he met with a serious accident on Friday morning last, when a horse he was riding fell with the result that he had an ankle badly wrenched. He was brought to the Wetaskiwin hospital for treatment, and it will likely be some time before he is able to resume his regular farm work.

A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Minnie of the Brightview district was brought to the hospital Tuesday evening for treatment. She fell and received a bad fracture of the arm near the elbow.

SCOWS FOR BUFFALO WAIT AT WATERWAYS

D. H. Christie, of the Northwest Territories and Yukon department, Ottawa, who is in charge of the movement of plains buffalo from Wainwright to the wood buffalo preserve at Fort Smith, returned from Waterways on Friday's train, and will leave for Wainwright this week to complete preparations for the first shipment.

All is practically ready at Waterways, states Mr. Christie. The corals are built and ready, and the two special scows which will be used to transport the buffalo from Waterways to their ultimate home, one is already completed, and the other will be finished within a few days.

Each scow is designed to hold about a hundred buffalo, the boats being 96 feet long by 25 feet wide. Pens are so arranged that the buffalo will be divided into four lots of 25 or so each, and every precaution has been taken to ensure that the animals will not suffer on the river journey.

Ample provision has been made for feeding and watering the animals on route, and no difficulty is anticipated on the score of landing the young buffalo to preserve in the best of condition.

MORE EXPORT STOCK GOES TO GLASGOW

A further shipment of cattle, 200 in number, to the Edmonton yards on Friday night, consigned by the Live-Stock Producers of Canada Limited, to their representative on the Glasgow market.

Included in the consignment are 100 store cattle, which will be finished for the market on old country farms.

This brings the number of cattle sent across during the past winter and spring from the Edmonton feedlots of the company well up to the 6,000 mark. It is expected that another large shipment next week and a final one towards the middle of June will conclude the shipping operations of the company for the season.—Journal.

OBITUARY

MRS. CAROLINE PALMER

One of the oldest residents of the community passed away on Friday in the person of Mrs. Caroline Palmer, at the advanced age of eighty-nine years, eight months and twenty-six days. She was born in Sweden and immigrated to the United States in the year 1857, where she resided until 1909, when she came to the Wetaskiwin district to reside with her son C. A. Palmer, eight miles north of the city. She made her home with her son until she was called to cross the great divide to be with loved ones gone before.

Her husband predeceased her forty-three years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss one son, C.A., and ten grand children, besides a large number of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral took place Saturday afternoon, service being conducted by the Swedish Baptist church by Rev. P. M. Meyer, and the interment took place in the Wetaskiwin cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. Rosberg, John Berg, Erickson, Johnson, Byström and Axel Bengtson.

Many friends in the community join in extending the deepest sympathy to the bereaved family in their hour of sorrow.

MRS. W. P. ANDRUS

Mrs. Jane Andrus received the sad news a few days ago that her mother, Mrs. W. P. Andrus, has passed away at her home, 702 Cottonwood Street, Grand Forks, N.D. The husband of the late Mrs. Andrus predeceased her in 1922. She leaves a family of one son and three daughters, namely, Mrs. James Lake of Wetaskiwin; John S. of Camrango, Alberta; Mrs. Lillie M. Smalley, of Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. E. W. Harris, of Delmona, Wash.

SUMMER SESSION OF LEGISLATURE MATTER OF FORM

Edmonton, May 26.—The adjourned session of the Alberta legislature, which was to take place June 16 soon or later, will not be a very important affair, and the government, if possible, will have the house prorogued without further session. If that is not possible according to the rules of the house, then there will be a formal session and immediate prorogation.

The house adjourned for two recesses. On Monday to give time to the federal parliament to pass the necessary legislation for transfer of the natural resources to the province and to enable the railway chiefs and the federal government and the provinces to cooperate in solving the railway policy in Peace River. The federal parliament, it seems almost certain now, will be unable to transfer the resources this session, and in the second place the railway chiefs have been unable to come to any satisfactory solution about Peace River railway extension. For that reason there is no need of any meeting of the members of the legislature.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AND DANCE MONDAY

An open tournament was held on Monday, May 25th in which players from Camrose, Bittern Lake and Wetaskiwin participated. All the prizes were carried off by the local players as follows:

Men's Singles—E. G. Grant.
Men's Doubles—E. Garlough and J. Mann.

Ladies' Singles—Miss B. Robinson.
Ladies' Doubles—Mrs. Emmett and Miss Muriel Switzer.

Men's Doubles—Miss B. Robinson and E. Garlough.

In the evening the annual Tennis dance was held, which was the usual success. During the course of the evening, the diamond ring was drawn for and the lucky number was held by Wm. Paton. The second prize was won by L. Garlough, Peristash, and third prize by Mrs. Cornack. The second and third prizes were boxes of chocolates. The music furnished by the Harmony Four orchestra was excellent, the lunch was very palatable and everyone reports having a good time.

Schedule games will start June 1st and all those wishing to play are requested to hand in their fees to the secretary treasurer before noon on Saturday, May 30th.

URBAN ASSESSMENT APPEALS ACT DRAFT BEFORE DELEGATES

Officials from a number of Alberta towns and cities were in conference with the government Thursday morning last at Edmonton on the draft of the new urban assessment appeals act, which it is proposed to bring before the legislature at its forthcoming adjourned session. Edmonton, Calgary, Red Deer, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Innisfail and Vegreville were represented.

The act as drafted was given a thoroughgoing once over, and will be revised in several particulars to suit the requirements of the urban municipalities. Its aim in general will be to stabilize assessed land values in towns, cities and villages, and assessments will be fixed for five-year periods. Provision is to be made for appeals against these assessments, and after the local courts of revision have completed their work in such cases the final decision is to rest with the board of public utilities, which may require additions to its numbers in order to take care of the work.

It was the feeling of the city representatives that the first court of revision to deal with all assessment questions should be left to the discretion of the city councils, and a new clause in the act will provide that in the case of the cities, this revising authority may be the council itself, a committee of the council, the commissioners, or some other body set up for the purpose by the council.

Mayor Webster of Calgary, and Commissioner Mitchell of Edmonton, pointed out that different methods are now in use in those two cities, and a certain amount of freedom will be left in this regard to all the cities.

Mayor Montgomery of the conference as the delegate from Wetaskiwin.

REV. IRWIN GOES TO MACLEOD

According to the final draft of the stationing committee of the Methodist church, Rev. W. H. Irwin, who has been the pastor of the Methodist church here for the past four years, has been located at Macleod. He will leave about the first of July to take up his new work.

METHODIST CHURCH DISTRICT MEETING

A correspondent of the Lacombe Globe gives the following report: The Wetaskiwin Annual District Meeting of the Methodist Church met at Blackfalds with eight ministers and eight lay delegates representing the following circuits, Wetaskiwin, Millet, Ponoka, Battle River, Olive, Blackfalds, Bentley and Himsby. The ministers present were Revs. Irwin, Francis, Taylor, Armstrong, Lobb, Nightingale, Edworthy. The lay delegates were E. H. L. Thomas, Mrs. W. Denney, W. M. Storey, G. Baptiste, Mrs. R. Hansburg, S. J. Leader, D. Brown, Mrs. C. E. Weiss.

At this meeting each circuit and minister went under review for the year's work, spiritual and financial. Here all the results of the year are tabulated and then carried on to the annual conference which meets in Edmonton next week.

A recommendation went through the meeting recommending the same Lacombe Presbytery be called after union on June 16th, that of Wetaskiwin.

The amount of missionary money raised in the district was $875, with one place to hear from, which will bring this sum to around $1000.

A delegation from Lacombe, representing the United Church and the Presbyterian church were present asking for the transfer of the Methodist parsonage to be sold, the proceeds to be devoted to the building of a United Church in the vicinity of the parsonage situated after June 10.

The delegates elected to the stationing committee of conference were Rev. J. B. Francis, with the chairman, Rev. W. H. Irwin. Rev. T. E. Arm strong was elected alternate.

The following lay members were elected to attend the annual conference: E. H. L. Thomas, Mrs. W. Denney, W. M. Storey, G. Baptiste, Mrs. Coote, S. J. Leader, J. R. Hutton, Mrs. H. W. Watt; alternates: J. H. Stone, L. Culter, W. Steel.

The ladies of the Blackfalds Ladies' Aid generously provided dinner and supper for the delegates, which all appreciated to the fullest extent.

A ROSE GARDEN

In a small British town a few years ago there lived an old civil engineer and his middle-aged and unmarried daughter. They occupied and owned a comfortable house in the suburbs of the town. This house stood in a fair-sized garden divided by a tall and thick hedge into two halves. In one of these halves stood the house. The other half consisted mainly of a small hay field, but there were also fruits, vegetables and a number of trees. There were also similar rose trees and other flowers in the half of the garden where the house stood. The engineer, who may be called Brown, was a keen gardener and took a great pride in his garden. The whole garden was shut in by small trees or shrubs growing thickly together and was enclosed by the usual stone wall. On two sides of it ran a public road. On the other two sides were the gardens of two other private houses, one of about the same size as Brown's, the other, a large, rambling place, almost a small estate, the grounds of which were thickly grown with trees and much neglected, while the house itself had for some time been empty.

It was mid-summer and the garden was in its full glory with fruit ripening and roses blooming in profusion. One day Mr. Brown had to go into the country on business. His household consisted of Miss Brown, his daughter, and a maid, a strong and good looking country girl. In the afternoon Miss Brown happened to take a walk into the garden to look at the flowers. She opened the gate in the hedge referred to above as dividing the garden, and at once saw that something very annoying had happened. Two large and heavy ornamental flower vases, ordinarily stood on stone pedestals just within the gate. They had both been thrown down and their contents were strewn on the ground. This was not all. The net which covered the strawberry bed and protected the fruit from the birds had been thrown back and the strawberries were freely stripped and taken away. Finally, several fine rose bushes had been wantonly broken, and stood or lay smashed on the ground. "The hay in the centre of this half of the garden was high and ripe for cutting. From the rose bed through the centre of the hay ran what obviously seemed to be the route of the intruder, for there was a trampled trail leading to the corner of the garden where the road turned around it, and at the very corner just inside the boundary wall were a few stray rose petals, apparently dropped as the intruder finally escaped. Miss Brown was intensely annoyed. The damage was not great, but she knew how angry her father would be at the smothering of his rose trees, and the mere fact of the garden being trampled at all in this way when there were only the two women home was disturbing. It was not surprising that the intruders had not been seen from the house, as the hedge dividing that half of the garden from the house was as tall and thick that no one in the house could see over or through it what was going on in the other part of the garden. Miss Brown went back to the house and told her maid, Kate, what had happened. It was put down to the work of some mischievous school boys, but that did not make it any less vexatious. It was still early in the afternoon, and Mr. Brown was not expected back until late in the evening. Miss Brown, therefore, went over to one of her near neighbors to tell her what had happened and also to say that she did not like the idea of being left in the house with only the maid if there was any likelihood of someone coming into the garden in this fashion.

One of the neighbor's sons, whose name was Smith, was at that time home from the south on a holiday. He was not in when Miss Brown called, but on his coming in early in the evening he was asked to go over to the Brown's house. On going over he found that Mr. Brown had just got back and together the two men walked around the garden to examine the damage. Except for one foot mark in the soil of the rose bed there was no distinct trace of the intruders. The weather was dry, the ground comparatively hard and it was also obvious that the intruders had been cautious enough to keep as much as possible to the grass borders or at any rate to avoid stepping on soft earth. The one foot mark, however, disposed of the small schoolboy theory, as it was distinctly too big for anything but a man or a very well grown boy.

Brown announced his intention of reporting the matter to the police. Now it happened that the police had of late been distinctly if unofficially keeping an eye on the Brown household. Kate, the maid, was tall and handsome. She had been with the Browns for about a year, long enough for the eagle eye of one of the town policemen to light on her and do so with favor. He pursued his suit and just previously to this occurrence Kate had announced to her employers that she had become engaged to the gallant policeman. The natural result was that the bulky form of the officer in question was a familiar figure to the Browns.

Brown did not report the matter to the police the next morning, and the police, though naturally regarding it as a trivial affair, promised to look into it and keep an eye on the garden.

The following afternoon Mrs. Smith, the neighbor already referred to, went over to call for Miss Brown, and after a few minutes in the house Miss Brown proposed that they go out in to the garden and Mrs. Smith got some idea of what had been done, though in the measure the gardener had cleaned up the place to some extent. The two ladies accordingly went out of the house and through the gate into the far half of the garden. To their alarmed astonishment they found that the visit of the previous day had been repeated, but on this occasion the fruit had been ignored and the rose trees alone selected for attack, while, instead of being merely broken, the trees had been slashed through with a knife close to the ground. This indication of wanton, deliberate malice at once made the matter much more serious. The small boy is extraordinarily fond of breaking things, and fruit has always had a strong hold on his affection, especially fruit in someone else's garden, but he does not usually go in for the carefully planned damage that was indicated in this case, and the use of a knife to cut the trees gave it a look that was distinctly uninviting.

A message was sent to the police informing them of this second attack. They promised to take steps at once to discover the authors of it, but they still regarded it as of little importance. Next morning the Brown household was thrown into yet deeper consternation, for in the night the garden had been again visited, and another series of rose bushes cut through. Brown went in furious indignation to the police station to report this latest discovery, and demanded to know if the only use of policemen was to sit in the kitchen and eat his food supplied by the hands of the enamoured Kate, while his garden was being steadily ruined. The police now began to take a serious interest in the case, and declared that they would have the garden under a continuous supervision till the assailants were discovered. In the meantime Miss Brown had been over to Mrs. Smith with her tale of woe. Young Smith was highly interested. Being on a holiday and rather short of amusement, it appeared to him as rather a lark, and he therefore went, on Sunday, and offered to enlist the services of several of his friends, and on Monday, and settle down to watch the garden day and night till the culprits were caught. Brown, however, discouraged the idea, saying the matter was in the hands of the police, and they had better be left alone to ferret it out.

The "ferreting out" process was not much of a success. In spite of what the police declared was a continuous watch the garden was attacked three more times during the week and not a trace of a clue could be found, while the cherished and valuable roses were being rapidly reduced to complete ruin. The skill, swiftness and secrecy of these attacks and their persistence put the mischievous schoolboy theory quite out of the question. It had all the look of the work of a human, and the statue lying around one's house and invading one's garden at odd moments of the day and night is not the thing to soothe the nerves of a maiden lady. Miss Brown began to get into a state of really serious fright. On the Friday there was no attack, and it was hoped that the scare was over, but Saturday morning revealed a fresh set of rose bushes slashed, and brown the Brown family within sight of hysteria. So far, only the half of the garden not occupied by the house had been touched. The splendid rose beds close beside the house were still undamaged.

It was at this point that Smith renewed his offer to assist in the watching of the garden, and Brown, with his faith in the police distinctly shaken, accepted the offer, but not in time to allow Smith to get any of his friends for the Saturday night. The police were still supposed to be keeping a close watch on the place. The worthy Kate's fiancé added to the length of his visits in the evenings, but Saturday afternoon saw the second attack of the day brought off with all the skill and unobserved success of the other ones. When word of this was reported to the police by the now frantic Brown, the reply was that a policeman could stay in the garden that night without fail. Smith also had decided to stay in the garden throughout the night. About ten o'clock a night, when the long midsummer day was drawing to a close, the policeman arrived for the vigil. Smith was already there in the house, and Kate showed the officer into the drawing room with a fine flurry of excitement. The alarming incidents had broken down the reserve that usually exists between mistress and maid in a British household, and Kate was eagerly sharing in the councils of her employers and making shrewd suggestions as to hiding places in the garden for the watchers. There was no lack of hiding places as the thick bushes all around the outside of the garden made splendid cover. Brown suggested that he and the two men should walk around the garden and select the hiding places. It had been settled that the policeman should watch the far half of the garden.

MILLET

Mr. Roger Howes, who is under appointment to sail as a missionary to China next November, supplied the services on the Millet circuit on Sunday last, for the Rev. Percy Johnson, who was attending the annual Methodist conference at Edmonton. The career of Mr. Howes will be followed by all the Millet people who knew him, with sympathetic interest for his continuance in his work.

The annual picnic of the Millet U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. will be held at Millet on Wednesday, June 3rd, when a big baseball tournament and other sports will take place. An excellent lunch will be served on the grounds. A big dance will be given in Pinyon's hall in the evening, music being supplied by a five-piece orchestra.

DUHAMEL

In the first game of the U.F.A. league the "Duhamel Greyhounds" ran down the "Haultain Coyotes" by a score of 5 to 2. The batteries for Haultain were Pearson and Elkerman, and for Duhamel, Olstead and Olstead. On May 25, the Duhamel baseball club journeyed to Camrose and played a picked team composed of the Pike and the Normalites, Camrose winning by a close margin of 3 to 2. Olstead did the twirling for Duhamel, and certainly pitched a fine game, fanning almost every one of the Camrose men.

CHERRY GROVE

The Battle River Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Roy Ballhorn on Thursday afternoon last, when it was decided to hold the usual community picnic some time in June. Rev. A. L. Elliott, of Wetaskiwin, was present and gave a talk on missionary work to a large and appreciative audience. A good program was rendered, among those taking part being Mrs. H. J. Montgomery, whose solo was greatly appreciated. The ladies of the Battle River W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. John Arnold on Friday evening, May 22, for a surprise party, the occasion being the anniversary of her birthday. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses, as a slight token of appreciation of the untiring efforts she has put forth as president since the society was organized nine years ago. An impromptu program was enjoyed, and a delightful evening was spent by the large number of members who were present.

COAL LAKE

The regular monthly meeting of the Coal Lake local U.F.A. will take place at the Coal Lake hall on Friday evening, June 7. The usual order of business will be dealt with. All parents who have boys in the Coal Lake band should be present at a meeting of raising more funds will be decided upon. E. E. Sparks, M.L.A., and other prominent speakers will be present, therefore everyone should be there at 8:30 sharp, as there is a lot to discuss.

We need so often in his life this balancing of scales, This seeing how much in us wins and how much in us fails; But before you judge another, just to lay him on the shelf— It would be a splendid plan to take a walk around yourself.

THE DREAM

The girl sprang to her feet and vaulted up and down the dean's of; her eyes were red, and her thin face was drawn as if with pain. "I suppose you think I am selfish," she cried. "But I haven't slept a night since the telegram came. I've read it over and over until I'm almost wild. I can't see how it is right to expect me to leave college and give up all my plans to take care of mother. I could go to her during vacations. It isn't as if we hadn't money enough to make her comfortable; she could have almost anything in the world. And she may live for several years; the doctor said so."

"Twenty years ago," the dean said slowly, "another girl came to me with a problem like yours. She was studying chemistry. She told me that there wasn't anything in the world she liked better, and that, if anyone offered her money and music and stardom and beauty, she would want them only to analyze in the laboratory. In her junior year her mother died and left one little girl and three boys between the ages of twelve and nineteen.

"I've seen great struggles, but I've never seen a bigger one than that girl went through. When she said goodbye she looked as if she had had a year's sickness. 'I'm going home' she said, 'but I'll never give up my dream!'"

"I told her that there was as much chemistry about her home as there was anywhere else in the world, and I've never forgotten the startled look that came into her eyes. She stood quite still and just looked."

"She was at home for nine years, till the girl started at college. Then she herself returned and took up the work where she had left off. Of course she was years older than the most of our fellow students; and she had lost much of the technique of her work. But she had gained other things, judgment, power of quick decision, all-around knowledge and human sympathy. Moreover, through the years she had read much and had followed her beloved study into unexplored fields. She had studied the chemistry of the Bible and of literature; she knew the history of chemistry and the lives of the great chemists. In short, she was well on the way to becoming a well-rounded chemical scholar, not a mere laboratory worker."

"Another thing in the years at home she had so fired her brothers with her enthusiasm that to-day all three of them are men of science. Years afterwards she said, 'My disappointment was the best thing that ever came to me. If I had had my own way, I would be nothing but a chemist now. Those years taught me to put life first and chemistry second.'"

"That is why we could not afford to let her go when she finished her course. For twelve years now her influence has been inspiring hundreds of lives inside and outside the laboratory."

"You don't mean—Miss Torrance?"

the girl cried.
"I mean Miss Torrance."
The girl stood quite still, and the dean, watching, saw the look he had been waiting for come into the tired eyes.

URNS DOWN BIG FORTUNE

Chances of making a tidy fortune have been dangled before an Edmonton optician, J. E. S. McClung, but as the lure is held forth under the ancient Spanish prisoner trick, it seems unlikely that it will prove productive here.

If, as recent dispatches from the old country stated, there have been arrests of persons who have been working the Spanish swindle, some must be still at large. Evidence of this fact is given in the following letter which was received in Friday's mail by Mr. McClung. This had been mailed from Spain and read as follows:

"Dear Sir: Being imprisoned here by bankruptcy, I beseech you to help me obtain the sum of $300,000 I have in America, being necessary to come here to raise the seizure of my luggage, paying to the register of the court the expenses of my trial and receive my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden two checks payable to bearer for that sum."

"As regard I will give you the third part, viz., $120,000. I cannot receive your answer in prison but you can forward a cablegram to a person in my confidence, who will deliver it to me, addressed as below. Awaiting your answer to entrust you all my secret, I only sign now C. First of all answer by cable, not by letter. Pedro Farral, Dist. Carros, 717 Organa, Spain."

"No, I do not think that I'll send a cable or a letter to Pedro," said Mr. McClung, and he meant it. So there's no Edmonton money going over to the would-be wise ones in Spain.

Millions of Dead Fish On Beaver Lake Shores

Tofield, Alta., May 25.—The south and west shores of Beaver Lake are covered with millions of jackfish and suckers, and as far as the eye can see into the water from the edge one can see fish lying dead. This is the second time that old-timers have known the edge of the lake to be lined with dead fish after the breaking up of the ice in the spring.

For some distance from the lake the stench from the decaying fish is very bad.

There are several theories being advanced locally for this unusual occurrence. One is that the breaks and holes in the ice, which can almost always be seen on as large a body of water as this during the winter, become frozen over and the fish could not get air.

Another theory is, when the thaw came, the ice at the edge of the lake and for some distance out, lifted and the space beneath filled with water. The fish swam into this water filled space; and when the ice broke, the strong winds from the north drove great masses of ice upon the shore, thus crushing and killing the fish occupying the space under the ice near the shore.

Provincial Weekly News Bulletin

Activity in Oil Fields

Not in the history of the province has there been so much activity in the oil fields as is the case this season. The chief activity is in the Turner Valley field, south of Calgary, where the first strike of oil was made in 1914, and where now there are several producing wells, one of which is the Royale No. 4, owned by a subsidiary of the Imperial Oil Co., and which is producing over 300 barrels per day of high grade gasoline. Several new wells are being sunk in the vicinity of this well, by various companies, and the entire field has been blanketed with leases. Other activity is noted in the Coultis field south of Lethbridge, where heavy gas flows have been struck in the wells already sunk, and in the Wainwright field, east of Edmonton, where several wells are being put down.

EGG PRESERVATIVES

Cheap Eggs in Winter—Many families, even of farmers and other poultry keepers, have very few eggs to use from October to February, when prices are high. It would be easy for them to preserve and store as many as required, if they would but take the trouble to do so.

Experiment at Cap Rouge.—In order to secure information regarding the best methods of preserving eggs, an experiment was started in 1916 at the Cap Rouge experimental station. Eight methods were tested: 1, wrapping in paper and leaving undisturbed; 2, wrapping in paper and turning daily; 3, packing in oats; 4, packing in sawdust; 5, Compose Gauin; 6, Armstrong paste; 7, lime water; 8, waterglass.

Results.—It was soon found that the two best methods by far were the lime water and the waterglass. These have been continued to date and very little difference has been found, although different lots of eggs are tested each year by the Dominion Chemist and the Dominion poultry husbandry man at Ottawa, and by the superintendent of the Cap Rouge experimental station.

Best Methods.—Use one pound of good, freshly burnt quicklime to five gallons of water. Shake the lime with a small quantity of water, just enough to cover it, and then stir the milk thus formed into the water. Keep well stirred for a few hours, allow to settle, and the pour the saturated water over the eggs. With waterglass, use about four pounds in ten gallons of water.

EXTRA CARE OF EGGS IN WARMER WEATHER

Special care should be taken this season, from now on, of the surplus eggs the producers expect to offer for market, as eggs will deteriorate very rapidly during warm weather. This is especially true of fertile eggs, which include the greater percentage of the offerings now, due to the fact that a majority of our poultrymen have not yet removed the male birds from their flocks. It is to be hoped that as soon as the incubators are put aside for the season and the fine, large flocks of chicks have reached a satisfactory growth, our poultrymen will again "swat the rooster" and thus prepare to offer their surplus eggs to an advantage. In doing this it would be well to observe the following points:

1.—Supply plenty of nests for the laying hens. Crowded conditions cause many eggs to be broken or stained, thus reducing their sale value.

2.—Clean straw should replace that which served the setting hen. This will aid the laying birds to remain healthy.

3.—Gather the eggs at least once a day. By so doing you are protected against loss by breaking or excessive heat.

4.—Store eggs in a cool place when collected and market as frequently as possible. Deterioration starts quickly during warm weather, decreasing their commercial value.

The dandelion crop gives every evidence of being most luxuriant this year. It is a difficult matter to keep the dandelion from spreading as the light seeds are carried considerable distances by the winds.

In these were the first students to be graduated from the Medical College since its establishment.

Investigate Paper Making

John Dacheville, inventor of a process for making paper out of straw, is to visit the province next week, for the purpose of investigating the possibilities of making paper from the straw of Alberta's grain fields. For some time experiments have been carried on along this line as a result of the effort of the provincial trade commissioner's office, and some very fine samples of paper have been produced. The inventor is to advise on the best location in the province for the establishment of an industry.

An Interesting Visitor

Big Acreage in Sugar Beets

Over 7,200 acres of sugar beets have been signed up for the new beet season at Raymond according to reports from Lethbridge.

BRITISH BUYERS IMPRESSED WITH ALBERTA CATTLE

Winnipeg, May 23.—The 208 head of prize cattle from Edmonton, the property of the Livestock Producers Company, of Canada, which sailed on the Parthena recently for the old country, created a marvelous impression on their arrival at Glasgow, according to a cable received here tonight from T. J. Irwin, first president of the company.

Mr. Irwin wires that the shipment was a revelation to the many experts who inspected it and says that he proposes exhibiting four of the best at this summer's Highland cattle show. The vice president adds that the 50 head of black cattle from Edmonton which crossed on the Salacia were also outstanding.

VEAN GREGG LOST IN COURT CASE DECISION

Alimony at the rate of $50 per month was awarded to Mrs. Golda Grace Gregg, of Edmonton, against her husband, Sylvanus Augustus Gregg, a hall player of the Washington American league baseball club, in which he plays under the name of Vean Gregg, when a divorce action was brought before Chief Justice Simmons in the supreme court on Saturday morning.

Mrs. Gregg, through George Henwood, K.C., claimed divorce and custody of the two small children of the marriage, but was granted the alimony on the understanding that order would not prejudice any issue as to divorce later on. The action was undecided.—Journal.

CATCHING FISH

He had had bad luck fishing and on his way home he entered the butcher shop and said to the dealer:

"Just stand over there and throw me live of the biggest of those trout!"

"Throw 'em! What for?" asked the dealer in amazement.

"So I can tell the family I caught 'em. I may be a poor fisherman, but I'm no liar."

GET RID OF THE COUGH THAT STICKS

You Can Do This By Using

Dr. Wood's

Norway Pine

Syrup

Some colds and coughs seem hard to shake off; stick right to you in spite of everything you do to get rid of them, but cannot.

These are the kind that are dangerous; the kind that weaken the lungs; the kind that allow the germs of consumption to get a foothold in the system.

Many a life history might read differently, if, on the first appearance of a cough or cold, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup had been taken, as it contains all the lung healing virtues of the "Norway Pine Tree" with which is combined the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Mr. John E. Luff, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"Last year I had a cold, and a cough which seemed to stick on my chest. I tried different preparations, but they did not seem to help me any. I was advised, by a friend, to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and when I had taken a few doses I began to feel that it was doing me good, so I kept at it and inside of a week I was relieved of my trouble."

There is only one Norway Pine Syrup and that is "Dr. Wood's." Be sure and get the genuine. Put up only by The T. W. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HENRY FORD RATED AS A BILLIONAIRE

Henry Ford is the first billionaire. He is not only the richest man in the world, but the richest man that ever lived.

That Ford is the greatest money-making machine the world has ever seen cannot be gainsaid. Whether or not he is truly great remains to be proven. Ford has done wonderfully clever things in business and some very foolish things outside of business. Time will test him and assay him at his true value.

John D. Rockefeller never was a billionaire. The loose-thinking world gave him that title for a long time until his son a few years ago dissipated the conception in a public statement. Probably $700,000,000 represents the high-water mark of the Rockefeller fortune when it was greatest and intact. Mr. Rockefeller has given away 70 per cent of his fortune in public and private bequests and a large portion of the balance has been placed in the hands of his son and numerous other families. There are many men in the country today who are wealthier than John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

How much is Henry Ford worth in dollars and cents? A hard question to answer, and one that cannot be answered with exactitude. The Ford Motor Company has never published an income account, and now that Ford owns all the stock there is little likelihood of the public's being taken into the confidence of the company's profit and loss statements.

NORTHWARD TREND OF AGRICULTURE

An interesting commentary on the agricultural possibilities of the Canadian North is furnished by the results of the experimental substation at Port Vermilion, Alberta, for 1923. Port Vermilion is farther north than any part of Ontario and at times the thermometer falls to more than 60 degrees below zero. The mean temperature during the crop season ranges from 6 to 10 degrees lower than during the same months at Ottawa.

Wheat seeding began at the substation farm on May 7, and nine varieties were sown on test plots. At harvest they yielded at the rate of from 37 to 50 bushels per acre.

The results of the experiments with potatoes were even more remarkable. It has been found that in the northern regions early deep planting produces the best results. The seed was planted from May 8 to 10 and one variety yielded as high as 418 bushels per acre. Irish Cobbler, a well known variety, produced 329 bushels per acre.

One variety of garden corn produced a fair percentage of fully matured but rather small cobs. Garden beans were quite successful, and a large number of other common vegetables produced excellent crops in a very short time. In fact the shortness of time between the dates of seeding vegetables and the dates when they are fit for use is a striking feature of growth in the north country. This rapid growth is made possible by long hours of warm sunshine.

Fine yields of sunflowers for silage were obtained, while the growing period was favorable for hay and a heavy crop harvested.

All these results were obtained under more favorable conditions and by better cultivation than is generally found on farms, yet they show that there is a great field for the northward extension of agriculture.

Prominent Speaker To Aid Pool Organization

Word has been received by the joint organization committee of the dairy, livestock and poultry pools that W. J. Park, president and managing director of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' association, will come to Alberta, for one week to assist the pools in their drive for membership which starts June 8. It is expected that Mr. Park will be here for the first week of the drive. He will address meetings at several places in the province. Mr. Park has had much to do with the success in cooperative marketing of dairy products by the Fraser Valley association. The farmers in this pool have been getting from three to four cents more for their butterfat than the Alberta farmers, and generally speaking have been able to get about 70 per cent of the price the consumer paid for their product, as compared with about 50 per cent, which the Alberta producers get.

Plans for the Drive
Directors of the three pools will meet in Edmonton next week to complete plans for the membership drive. Each of the seven divisions of the province represented by a director in each pool, will be divided into districts, and a director placed in charge of each district, which will be thoroughly organized, with captains in charge of the canvassers, of which there are now about 400 appointed for the province. The director in charge of each district will cover the territory a week before the drive starts, appointing captains and arranging for the halls for meetings. More than 300 of the 500 meetings to be held have already been arranged for, and the advertising of these meetings will commence shortly. Auto stickers are also being provided to advertise the dates of the drive. The joint organization committee is now making its headquarters in Edmonton until the completion of the drive on June 25th.

Wheat Pool Contracts
Canvassers for the three pools will also carry with them contract forms for the Wheat Pool, which has been in operation for two seasons. It is possible that many farmers who have not already signed up with the wheat pool may wish to do so, and this will give them the opportunity.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDING CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Alberta Women's Institute being held at the University in Edmonton this week. A conference of the advisory board was held on Wednesday morning, and in the afternoon the advisory board met the constituency convenors. Mrs. H. J. Montgomery, of Wetaskiwin, gave a symposium on legislation at Tuesday's session.

Do you know that The Times has considerably more than twice the circulation of any other paper in the district. Remember this when you are advertising!

THE STORY OF A ROSE GARDEN

den, while Smith watched the half that the house was in. They went out of the front door, passed through the gate in the hedge to the other part of the garden and quickly found an excellent watching place completely screened by low thick shrubs. The selection took them at the most a couple of minutes, and then they returned to the house half of the garden. In that two minutes another attack was made, and this occasion for the first time the assailants had attacked the house half of the garden. A bed of roses close to the side of the house was found to have been attacked and as before a whole series of the trees cut through close to the ground with a sharp knife.

This was the climax. Even the stout policeman, hitherto previously to regard the whole thing as a mere triviality, was startled, and declared that it looked as if a stray lunatic was lurking in the thick shrubbery of the unoccupied adjoining property and making these swift dashes into the garden. He went on to state that if it had not been Saturday—that night of habitual roveliness in some parts of Britain—and the police therefore much occupied, he would have had another night at least to help in dealing with the case. Brown, old, rather infirm, and distinctly alarmed, had no inclination to share the vigil. The policeman and Smith took their respective posts and settled down to watch. Smith took his place under some low trees with his back to the house and his face to the thick shrubbery of the adjoining unoccupied property, settled himself comfortably with his back to a tree, and waited.

It was a lovely summer night, warm and still, but dark. The house was well out of the town, and therefore the noise of the town hardly reached it at all. As the last traces of light faded from the sky, it became pitch dark among the trees. Still as it was an occasional light breath of air stirred the trees, and when that happened there came a light rustling, which seemed to come from the bushes. It was the sound of stealthy footsteps creeping on the other side of the low wall. To the average man who sleeps almost invariably in bed in his house the sounds of night in the open, when he does have to pass such a night, are the most terrifying. The night he comes alive with noises, and to a solitary watcher under no reassuring circumstances, they are mainly sinister. Since that night, Smith, in common with the majority of the men of the world has passed through the ordeal of the great war and has known what it means to stand patiently in practically shelterless positions amidst the unending whine and crack of bullets and the scream and crash of high explosive shells, but even that ordeal was only slightly more uncomfortable than the feeling which gradually took possession of him as the long hours wore on while he sat facing that low wall on the other side of which the stealthy footsteps seemed to be always creeping and rustling among the leaves, and he wondered what manner of thing was going to come of it. The feeling which gradually took possession of him as the long hours wore on while he sat facing that low wall on the other side of which the stealthy footsteps seemed to be always creeping and rustling among the leaves, and he wondered what manner of thing was going to come of it. The feeling which gradually took possession of him as the long hours wore on while he sat facing that low wall on the other side of which the stealthy footsteps seemed to be always creeping and rustling among the leaves, and he wondered what manner of thing was going to come of it.

Soon after midnight the policeman came round from his station on the other side of the garden and gave Smith the pleasing information that he must go back to the police station to report. It appeared that the police headquarters had regarded the case so lightly that they had given him instruction to watch the garden only until midnight and then to return to town. Now, he said, that the case seemed obviously serious he could report that fact to his headquarters, and return. In the meantime, Smith must watch alone. He offered him his handcuffs which, to an inexperienced man were perfectly useless, and departed, leaving Smith alone.

TURN FIRST SOD ON CONCORDIA COLLEGE

With appropriate ceremony before a large gathering of Lutheran residents of Edmonton, the first sod of the new Lutheran educational institution, Concordia college, being erected in the Highlands, Edmonton, was turned on Wednesday afternoon by the principal of the college, the Rev. A. H. Schwermann. The start is being made on the foundation of the teaching building of the college which when completed, is to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000.

PAPER TRAIN WHEELS

Paper, when tightly compressed, is wonderfully durable. The wheels of a Pullman car are made of this material. The body of such wheel is a block of paper about four inches thick. Around this is a steel rim, and it is this, of course, which comes in contact with the rails. The slides are covered with circular iron plates, bolted on.

Smith wondering whether it was really as much of a lark as it had appeared in the comfortable crowded light of day.

However, the policeman duly returned in an hour or so, and the joint vigil was resumed. Slowly the hours passed. Slowly the sky grew grey again and the light began to return, and as it came the shrubberies began to wake to life, and branches moving in the morning breeze took on the form of sinister hands, peering over the wall and dodging down again. It is an old story that it much harder to stand and await attack than it is to go forward and meet it, and Smith discovered that fact when he found himself forced irresistibly to investigate some of these nodding branches and satisfy himself that they were in truth harmless.

Day came in true brightness and a welcome sun to warm the rather chilled watchers and nothing had stirred. The garden remained as it had been after the first attack.

About eight o'clock another policeman appeared to relieve his colleague and Smith went home for breakfast and rest. The mystery seemed unsolved, but the police had formed a theory. They informed Mr. and Mrs. Brown that the man who had been seen, they told Kate that she was to lock the doors of the house and by no means to stir outside, and they added that there was no likelihood of any further attack in daylight and that they would resume the watch in the afternoon. Kate naturally expected strenuously to being left alone in the house, but the police assured her that she would be all right with the doors locked, and they then ostensibly left the place and went in the direction of town.

They did not, however, leave. One of them climbed over the wall back into the garden and lay down under the shelter of a hedge which divided it, and he cut a hole in the thickness of the hedge so as to watch both halves of the garden. In due course, Mr. and Miss Brown departed for church. Almost half an hour later the back door of the house opened and Kate came out and walked down to the largest rose bed which had as yet been untouched. At once the policeman sprang from his shelter, and raced around to where she was. He was disappointed, Kate was merely standing looking at the bed, and, on his appearance, stated that she was only looking to see if any damage had been done to it. Policeman and girl walked together round to the front door of the house and as they got there they met two more policemen coming in at the gate. All four stood and chatted for a minute. Then two of the policemen announced that they were going in one direction while the other said he was going to look at an empty house in the other direction. Kate went back to the house. The policeman separated and went up and down the road. As soon as they were out of sight of the front door, the one policeman sprang over the wall into the garden again. The other two sprang over the wall into the shrubbery of the adjoining property and ran back towards the house part of the garden. As they came they heard the roses in the large bed going snap, snap, snap, and rushing to the place they found Kate furiously smashing and cutting the trees at top speed. When she saw them rushing towards her she fled back into the house, collapsed in hysterics and declared that she knew nothing about the matter. There is little more to be said. Kate had been the culprit all through, though from what strange, misguided motive, it is impossible to say. The cunning and skill with which she carried out her mischievous attacks are quite characteristic of a certain type of lunacy. Her father, a small farmer, was sent for, and asked to take the girl away. It is only to be recorded that after hearing his daughter's story, he flutty refused to believe that she was guilty. The garden remained undisturbed from that day on.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER AGONY FROM BACKACHE

Women are the greatest sufferers from weak, lame and aching backs owing to the continual stooping, bending and lifting so necessary to attend to their household duties.

Doan's Kidney Pills will give perfect relief and comfort to all women who suffer from backache, or other kidney troubles, and make their household duties a pleasure instead of a burden.

Mrs. Edward Michon, 148 Cardigan St., Guelph, Ont., writes:—"I have been in a terrible condition on account of having such awful pains in my back."

In fact I was so bad I would have to cease my washing several times before I could finish it.

Since taking Doan's Kidney Pills I have found great benefit, and cannot recommend them too highly."

ENGLISHMAN FLEECE OF $50,000 BY COAST BUNCO GAME

Vancouver, May 26—Using the name of a reputable local brokerage firm to mask their operations, confidence men on Friday swindled P. Rogers, of London, England, a visitor here, to the extent of $50,000 in one of the biggest "bunco" games in the history of the city, according to the police. The fraud was reported Saturday, but as the man had an advantage of a 24-hour start, the police have been unable to pick up their trail.

According to the story told by Mr. Rogers, he met a man named "Watson" while en route to Vancouver. On arrival here "Watson" introduced him to a friend, whom he introduced as a trusted executive of a Vancouver brokerage firm, who seemed to have ample money. Rogers was induced to take a "flyer" in oil stocks, and cabled to London for $50,000. In order to protect their standing at the brokerage house, Rogers handed over his money after receiving what he considered ample proof that the scheme was genuine. Since then he has heard nothing from his "friends."
